

Who Was Maggie Lee?

Maggie Lee was a counselor at the Epilepsy Association, a community activist, a friend, and she had epilepsy. In June 2001, she died suddenly as a result of injuries sustained during a seizure.

What is Epilepsy?

A neurological disorder resulting in recurrent seizures, which affects one out of every 100 persons in Western New York.

Did you know?

- Over 2.7 million Americans have epilepsy
- One in ten people will have a seizure during their life
- Many undetected/untreated cases of epilepsy remain in America
- In a majority of the cases there is no known cause for epilepsy
- Drug and Alcohol abuse can cause epilepsy

Proceeds will benefit:
